

Travel Notes — Madrid (Fictional Itinerary)

Page 1 of 3

Day one: arrive midday, check in near Sol, walk to Plaza Mayor and Mercado de San Miguel for tapas. Evening stroll in La Latina. Day two: Prado museum in the morning, Retiro Park picnic, sunset from Temple of Debod viewpoint.

Day three: day trip suggestion to Toledo for medieval streets and cathedral. Return by train in the evening. Pack comfortable shoes; many historic centers use cobblestones.

All itinerary details are invented for PDF testing. Verify real opening hours before travel.

Travel Notes — Madrid (Fictional Itinerary)

Page 2 of 3

Transport: Metro is efficient; consider a multi-day pass. Taxis and ride-hail apps work well from the airport. Spanish meal times run later than some visitors expect; lunch near 14:00 and dinner after 21:00 is common.

Phrases: hola, gracias, la cuenta por favor. Most tourist areas accommodate English, but basic Spanish is appreciated.

Closing filler: museums may require timed tickets in peak season. Hydrate in summer heat.

This document is not a travel guide.

Travel Notes — Madrid (Fictional Itinerary)

Page 3 of 3

Accessibility: many metro stations have elevators but not all; check maps if mobility is a concern. Cash is less common than cards in central areas; carry a small amount for tiny vendors.

Weather: spring and fall are mild; July and August can be very hot. Layer clothing for cool mornings and warm afternoons.

Third page ends the fictional Madrid notes PDF used for multi-page upload and embedding tests in the backend repository.